Petie the Pirate

Happier Happenings

One Halloween, my brother's friend, Georgie, was throwing a Halloween party for their class, but Petie didn't seem very happy about it. "What's wrong, Petie?" I asked, getting concerned about him. "Oh, I need a costume for the Halloween party, but mom said we don't have any extra money to spend on it." Normally, we weren't that close, but now I felt really bad for him. I was thinking what we could do to make him his own costume. I kept thinking about it, but somehow I couldn't come up with anything. Then one night they had a television program with a pirate in it. All he had was wear an eye patch, a big earring on his left ear, bandanna and a pirate's hat.

I found the items I needed in his closet, and just bought an eye patch, and a hat. It was only one dollar. The party was two blocks away, but I walked him over there. I wanted to see how the kids were dressed. Some of them had really terrific costumes. One was Captain Kirk, and one went as Pinocchio, very clever outfits. After the party, Petie came into my room and said, "Guess what, Susie, I got honorable mention for having the most creative costume! They gave me two Mars candy bars, one for me and one for you!" He even hugged me. —Thanks, Suzan Wiener, Spring Hill, FL

From Our Readers

During the Pandemic

This picture was taken during the pandemic. Our son, Chris and his wife and three children live in State College, PA. Trick or Treating was banned during the pandemic, but they wanted to do something for the neighborhood kids. Halloween is a big holiday at their house, lots of decorations, etc. It was decided to add the remote skull. It was attached to a tube which was placed in a bedroom window. The wrapped candy was placed in the tube and forced out through the tube to the skull where the kids would pick it out. Needless to say, it was a hit.

Days Gone By

Stationed in Florida

I visited a little Baptist church off base. There I met Lucille Davis. "We called her MAMA." We also met her sister Aunt Frances And Mama's son, Johnny, who was born with cerebral palsy. Our initial introduction became a very close family relationship. Us "sailor boys" would often go to Mama's house after church. Mama made the best ice tea, and her cake and cookies made us feel like we were home again. After I got out of the Navy, I went home and got married and had two daughters. We all flew back to visit these dear friends! Johnny and I remain the best of friends after 50 years! We talk on the phone, exchange emails, and write cards and letters to each other regularly. That's what best friends do!

TEACHING OUR CHILDREN GOOD MONEY HABITS

Allow your child to earn his allowance by completing chores at home. Make sure the chores they are assigned are age appropriate so that they don't feel discouraged.

Open a savings account for your child as soon as possible. Teach them to save one third, donate a third and spend a third.

Teach your child to spend money wisely. Explain how it takes time to earn money.

Allow your child to use his own money to purchase family gifts. This will teach generosity and how to look for bargains.

Give your child the opportunity to be a part of the family financial planning. Everyone in the family should be a part of making decisions.

Health Tip

Let's Take a Look

It would be a good idea to check your children's Halloween candy after trick-or-treating to ensure their safety. Only consume commercially wrapped treats and discard any unwrapped or home-made items unless you personally know the source. A quick inspection by a responsible adult can significantly minimize potential risks and ensure a safe Halloween.

Also, if your children are really young, you may want to remove any candies that could be a choking hazard. Young children have underdeveloped chewing and swallowing skills, making certain types of candies a potential choking hazards.

Jim's FBI Happenings

– by Jim Brady
Your Good Friend
Retired FBI Agent,
Hendersonville, TN

Two for You and Two for Me

It happens, even to us FBI Officers

During police school held in the Savannah, Georgia Division, a game warden was relating the interesting excuses he gets from game poachers. He said the most humorous excuse came when he caught a hunter with four wild turkeys, two over the day's legal limit. When asked why he had four turkeys in his possession, the hunter replied, “two for you and two for me.” Needless to say, the excuse was not accepted.

See you next week. —Jim.

Dear Dave

Dave Ramsey

Investing or Student Loan Debt?

Dear Dave,

Our daughter is a student, and she has $10,000 in student loan debt. She works part-time, and has a couple of scholarships, but she has borrowed a little along the way to bridge gaps. Her uncle recently sold his business, and he told us he would like to give her a gift of $10,000. We've talked to her about this, and we'd like to guide her in the smartest possible direction. Should she begin planning for the future, and use this gift to start investing, or should she use it to pay off her student loans? —Gilbert

Dear Gilbert,

I really appreciate you two trying to help your daughter do the very best thing with her finances and her future. Her uncle sounds like a pretty generous guy. So, let's take a minute and give this situation a good look.

We'll start by pretending she doesn't have any student loan debt. In a case like that, would it be wise for her to borrow money on a student loan in order to invest? Of course not. It's a dumb question, but I want to get you thinking. If you don't pay off the loans, and invest it instead, it's just like you borrowed money to invest. See what I mean? That would be a pretty bad plan.

In my opinion, your daughter needs to get her student loan mess cleaned up as soon as possible. And this gift from her uncle represents the perfect opportunity to do just that. Listen to me, Gilbert. The last thing in the world your daughter needs is big pile of debt waiting on her when she gets out of school. I want her to start investing at some point down the road, but she's just not in a good position to be an investor right now. She needs to pay off all those student loans. I'm talking about wiping out all that debt the minute she gets this wonderful gift in her hands.

And the second after she pays off those student loans, she should get to work on saving a pile of money, so she can complete her studies without racking up any more debt!

—Dave

Amazing “Animals”

Kings of the Jungle

Lions are big cats that live in groups called prides. Prides usually consist of related females and their cubs, and one or more adult males. An adult male’s roar can be heard up to 5 miles away. Lions roar to mark their territory, communicate with pride members, and deter rivals. Despite being called "kings of the jungle," most lions actually live in savannahs and grasslands.

Two-timing Diabetes

Bob Wills sang, "Texas two-step ... Spin me around/You got to hold me up/When you dip me down." You could also say a "diabetes two-step" can spin you around and dip your risks down. That's the finding of two recent studies.

The first, presented at ENDO 2025, took a look at intermittent energy restriction (IER), time-restricted eating and continuous energy restriction and found that fasting twice a week (that's IER) could spin your Type 2 diabetes around so that your fasting blood glucose and triglycerides are dipping down.

The second, published in the Annals of Internal Medicine, found that whether you exercise three times a week for 150 minutes or more, or if you're a weekend warrior who gets 150-plus minutes crammed into two days, you'll improve your longevity. Over two decades, regularly active folks reduced their risk for all-cause mortality by 21% and the weekenders reduced it by 17%; and they had 33% and 19% lower risk of death from cardiovascular causes, respectively.

Now you may not have Type 2 diabetes — yet — but if you're prediabetic, another new study might help. Pre-diabetics are often told to have 15-30 grams of carbohydrates as a nighttime snack to help regulate nighttime/morning glucose levels. But trading that for 2 ounces of pistachios nightly can alter your gut biome, so you reduce chronic inflammation. And that may slow or help halt the development of diabetes. Tasty and smart!
